Someday Society Business Plan Draft

Nov 8, 2026 · @Dillon

Prepared by Dillon James and Talin Chander · BUSN-051, West Valley College · Fall 2026

Concept credit: this plan adapts the "Bakeri" bucket list support idea created by our partner Kanusuke Fukui in Japan. The market, customers, prices, research and financials are rebuilt for the United States.

Executive Summary

Someday Society will be located in Campbell, California, and will serve older adults in Saratoga, Los Gatos, Campbell, Cupertino and west San Jose. We help older adults turn "someday I'd like to..." into a real plan and a real experience. A planner visits the client at home, helps them write a personal bucket list, plans their top dreams safely and affordably, and then coordinates the experience with trusted local partners.

The mission of Someday Society is to help older adults discover, plan and live the experiences that matter most to them, safely and with dignity.

Our ideal customers are active, financially comfortable adults aged 65 to 85. Many of them have savings and free time but have put off their dreams because of health worries, the loss of a spouse, or simply not knowing where to start. Our other ideal customers are their adult children, ages 40 to 60, who are busy but want to give a parent a meaningful gift.

Customers will choose us for several reasons. First, we come to them. Many older adults do not drive far or use apps, so we sit down with them in their own living room. Second, we plan around their health and include their family, so families feel safe saying yes. Third, one planner handles every detail from start to finish.

The area is a strong fit for this business. In Saratoga, 25.9% of residents are 65 or older, and the median household income is about $241,000 (U.S. Census Bureau). Nationally, 70% of older Americans planned trips in 2025, but 45% said cost and 29% said health held them back (AARP, 2025). About one in three adults aged 50 to 80 feel lonely (University of Michigan, 2024).

Someday Society will be a limited liability company (LLC) owned equally by two co-founders, Dillon James and Talin Chander. Dillon will lead client planning and sales, and Talin will run operations and partner relationships. A licensed home care agency and a registered travel agency will be our partners, so every client is served by professionals.

We need $20,790 to start. Talin and I will each invest $3,000 of our own savings, and we are requesting a $15,000 bank loan. We expect $61,725 in sales in our first year and expect to cover all monthly costs by month six. Our personal approach, our focus on safety, and our community partnerships will make this business a sound investment.

Part 1 · The Contemporary Business Environment

Business Name

Someday Society, LLC

Description of Business

Someday Society is an in-home bucket list planning service for older adults. We help clients discover what they still want to do, build a safe and affordable plan, and then coordinate the experience with trusted local partners. Our office will be at Satellite Workplaces in The Pruneyard, Campbell, California. Most of our work happens in clients' homes and at the experiences themselves.

We sell three packages:

- Dream Session ($175): a 2-hour home visit to create the client's personal bucket list.
- Dream Plan ($450): a full plan for the client's top 3 dreams, with costs, timing, and a health and accessibility checklist.
- Dream Come True ($1,200 per dream): we book and coordinate one dream from start to finish. The client pays for the experience itself separately.

Form of Business Ownership

The business will be a limited liability company (LLC) with two members. Talin Chander and I, Dillon James, will each own 50% and each invest $3,000. An LLC is almost as simple to run as a partnership, but it protects our personal savings if the business is sued. That protection matters because we visit homes and arrange outings for older adults. The LLC will pay California's $800 yearly franchise tax, and profits will be split equally and pass through to our personal tax returns. We will sign an operating agreement that explains how we make decisions, how we share profits, and what happens if one of us leaves.

Each co-owner has a clear role. I will serve as co-founder and lead planner: I will lead home visits, Dream Sessions and Dream Plans, and handle sales and marketing. Talin will serve as co-founder and operations lead: Talin will manage our partner businesses, coordinate the logistics of each Dream Come True, keep the books, and run our website and client records. We can cover for each other, so clients are never left waiting. Both of us are business students at West Valley College. I have helped plan family trips and outings with my grandparents, and I saw how much a well-planned day meant to them; I enjoy sales and talking with people, which fits the planner role. Talin has worked in customer service and is the more organized of the two of us, comfortable with schedules, spreadsheets and budgets, which fits the operations role.

Ideal Customer

Our ideal customers fall into two groups. The first is active older adults aged 65 to 85 who live in Saratoga, Los Gatos, Campbell, Cupertino and west San Jose. They are healthy enough to enjoy new experiences and have the income to pay for them, but they need help or encouragement to get started.

The second group is their adult children, aged 40 to 60. They are busy professionals who often live far away. They want to give a parent something meaningful, such as a gift for a birthday, Mother's Day or Father's Day. We will have special promotions for each group, discussed in Part 4.

Our Advantages

Customers will choose us for several reasons. First, we bring the service to them. A planner sits down with the client at home, so clients who do not drive far or use apps can still take part.

Second, we plan with safety in mind. Every plan includes a health and accessibility checklist that the client can review with their doctor, and family members are invited to every planning meeting. Families feel safer saying yes when they know the details have been thought through.

Third, no one else in our area covers the whole journey. Travel agents sell trips, home care agencies help with daily living, and senior centers offer group outings. Someday Society is the only local business that helps a client figure out what they want and then makes it happen.

Ethical Issues

Our clients may be vulnerable to financial pressure, so honesty with money is our biggest ethical issue. We will give clients a written price before they pay anything. We will never take power of attorney or handle a client's bank accounts.

We will also earn a referral fee from some partner businesses, such as a travel agency. This creates a possible conflict of interest, because we could be tempted to recommend the partner that pays us the most. To prevent this, we will tell every client about referral fees in writing and always offer at least one option that pays us nothing. In the long run, we believe honesty will bring us more referrals than any extra fee.

Social Responsibility

Many older adults cannot afford a service like ours, yet they have dreams too. For every 20 paid packages we sell, we will donate one free Dream Plan to a low-income senior referred by the Saratoga Senior Center. We will also give free monthly "What's on Your List?" workshops at the senior center and local libraries.

All of our staff will pass a background check and be trained to recognize and report signs of elder abuse.

Global Issues

Someday Society is a local business, but some dreams are global. Many families in the West Valley have roots in China, India, Vietnam, Mexico, the Philippines and other countries, and a common dream is a trip back to a homeland. We will learn about travel documents, travel insurance and accessibility abroad, and we will book international travel only through a registered partner travel agency. As we grow, we will hire planners who speak languages such as Mandarin, Hindi, Vietnamese and Spanish. This business idea itself came from Bakeri, a project by our Japanese partner Kanusuke Fukui, a country with one of the world's oldest populations.

Part 2 · The Business of Managing

Mission Statement

The mission of Someday Society is to help older adults discover, plan and live the experiences that matter most to them, safely and with dignity. We bring the planning to their living room, include their family and health needs, and handle the details so the dream actually happens.

Business Goals

First-year goals:

1. To break even each month by month 6.
2. To sell 154 packages: 93 Dream Sessions, 41 Dream Plans and 20 Dream Come True experiences.
3. To earn an average client satisfaction score of 4.7 out of 5.
4. To sign 8 partner businesses by month 6.
5. To get 30% of new clients from referrals by month 12.

Intermediate to long-term goals:

1. To hire a part-time Dream Planner in year 2.
2. To serve all of Santa Clara County and earn about $135,000 in revenue in year 2.
3. To earn net profits of about $15,000 by year 3.
4. To open a second service area on the Peninsula (Palo Alto to San Mateo) within five years.

SWOT Analysis for Someday Society

Organizational

Strengths	Weaknesses
Only local service that covers discovery, planning and coordination	New business with no reviews or track record
Personal, in-home service that builds trust	Owner is the only planner, which limits how many clients we can serve
Low startup cost with no storefront or inventory	Depends on partners for travel booking and care
Health and family are part of every plan	Older clients take time to decide, so sales are slow at first

Environmental

Opportunities	Threats
Growing population aged 65 and over, with high incomes in the West Valley	Health problems can cancel or delay a client's dream

Opportunities	Threats
Adult children looking for meaningful gifts for parents	A stock market drop could make retirees spend less
Senior centers and senior living communities want activities for residents	Travel agencies or home care companies could copy the idea
Partner businesses will pay referral fees	New licensing rules could raise our costs

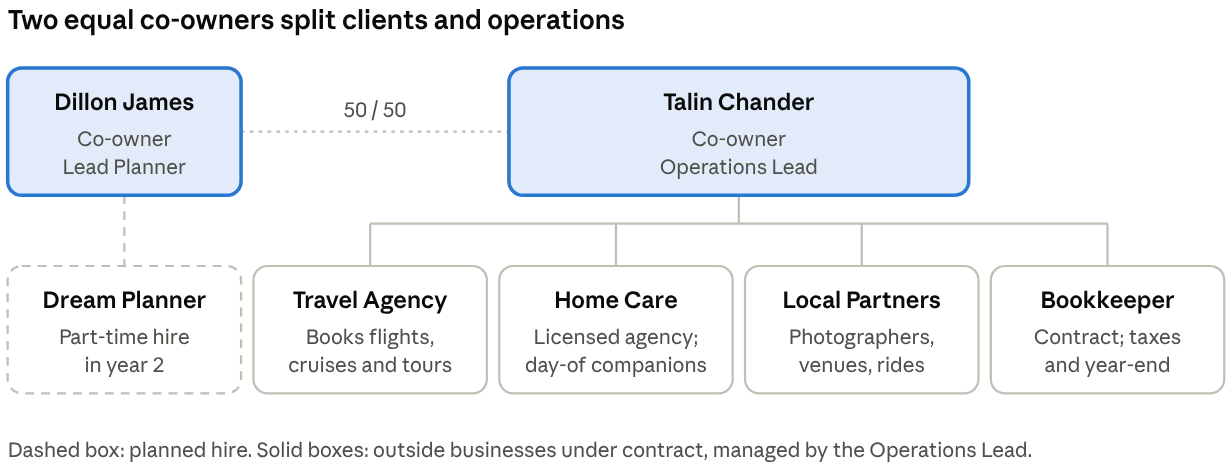

Management

There is one level of management at Someday Society, made up of the two co-owners:

- Lead Planner (Dillon James): clients, home visits, planning, sales and marketing.
- Operations Lead (Talin Chander): partner businesses, Dream Come True logistics, bookkeeping and technology.

In year two, we plan to hire a part-time Dream Planner who will report to the Lead Planner.

Organizational Chart

Dashed box: planned hire. Solid boxes: outside businesses under contract, managed by the Operations Lead.

Someday Society organizational chart · year one

The chart is simple because the business is small. As we grow, the next layer will be additional Dream Planners.

Office Layout

We do not need a storefront because we visit clients at home. We will rent a coworking membership with a small private office and access to a meeting room at Satellite Workplaces, 1875 South Bascom Avenue, Suite 2400, Campbell, CA 95008 (The Pruneyard), for about $450 per month (confirm current price). The private office holds a desk, a filing cabinet that locks for client records, and storage for keepsake supplies. The meeting room has a table for six, so families can meet with us in person. The building has parking and ground-level access, which is important for older visitors.

Equipment and Supplies

The business will need the following equipment and starting supplies:

Item	Cost
Laptop computer	$1,100
Tablet for home visits (shows photos and options to clients)	$500
Portable photo printer	$250
Webcam and headset for family video calls	$150
Equipment subtotal	$2,000
"Dream card" decks for the guided card-sort activity	$100
Keepsake frames (25 @ $8 each)	$200
Branded client folders	$80
Supplies subtotal	$500
Total	$2,500

We will not carry inventory beyond keepsake supplies. Experiences such as tickets, tours and hotels are booked for each client and paid by the client directly.

We will take calls Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Home visits are by appointment, including some evenings and Sundays so family members can attend.

Quality Assurance

Quality begins with the plan. Before any dream happens, the client and, if they wish, a family member review and sign a written plan that lists every cost, time, partner and backup option. I will choose partners carefully: the travel agency must be a registered California Seller of Travel, and the home care agency must hold a state Home Care Organization license.

After every package, clients receive a short survey by mail or phone. If any score falls below 4 out of 5, I will call the client personally to understand what went wrong. Partners who receive repeated complaints will be replaced.

Part 3 · People in Organizations

Corporate Culture

Our culture comes from our mission. Every client is treated as a capable adult whose wishes matter, and every plan puts their safety and dignity first. Our core values are dignity, safety, honesty, joy and community.

We would rather do fewer dreams well than rush many. Everyone who works with us, whether an employee or a partner, must be patient, kind, and comfortable spending time with older adults. We will also stay involved in our community through free workshops and donated Dream Plans.

Leadership Philosophy

As equal co-owners, Talin and I will make major decisions together, such as prices, new partners, hiring and any purchase over $500. Each of us decides day-to-day matters in our own area, and we will meet weekly to review clients, sales and cash. With our partners, we will use a participative approach: we will meet with each partner every three months to review client feedback and agree on improvements together.

When we hire a Dream Planner in year two, we will give them their own clients and trust them to make day-to-day decisions. We will meet weekly to review plans and solve problems as a team.

Job Descriptions

The job descriptions at Someday Society will be as follows:

Co-Founder and Lead Planner (Dillon James): The lead planner is responsible for everything the client sees before the experience. This includes answering calls, leading Dream Sessions in clients' homes, writing Dream Plans, and keeping families updated. The lead planner also runs advertising, workshops and referral relationships, and will train and supervise the Dream Planner in year two.

Co-Founder and Operations Lead (Talin Chander): The operations lead is responsible for making each dream happen smoothly. This includes finding, signing and managing partner businesses, booking and coordinating every Dream Come True, and preparing memory books. The operations lead also keeps the books, pays bills, manages the website and client records, and works with our contract bookkeeper.

Dream Planner (part-time, year two): The Dream Planner will lead Dream Sessions and write Dream Plans for their own group of clients. They will research options, prepare cost estimates, and keep clients and families updated. They will report to the lead planner and attend a weekly planning meeting.

Experience Companion (provided by our licensed home care partner): The companion goes with the client on the day of a local experience. They help the client get there and back safely, carry belongings, and make sure the client is comfortable. Companions are employed by the partner agency, not by Someday Society, and do not provide personal care unless the agency assigns a trained caregiver.

Bookkeeper (contract): A contract bookkeeper will review our records each month, prepare quarterly tax payments, and complete year-end tax forms.

Job Specifications

Job Title: Co-Founder and Lead Planner

Needed Skills/Credentials/Qualifications: Strong people skills, patience, and clear communication with older adults and their families. Organized and good with details, budgets and schedules. Must pass a Live Scan background check, hold current CPR and first-aid certification, and have a valid driver's license and a clean driving record.

Job Title: Co-Founder and Operations Lead

Needed Skills/Credentials/Qualifications: Highly organized and comfortable with budgets, scheduling and basic bookkeeping. Able to negotiate with partner businesses and solve problems quickly when plans change. Must pass a Live Scan background check, hold current CPR and first-aid certification, and have a valid driver's license.

Job Title: Dream Planner

Needed Skills/Credentials/Qualifications: At least one year of experience in senior services, travel, event planning or hospitality. Warm, patient and a good listener. Must pass a Live Scan background check, complete CPR and first-aid training, and have a valid driver's license. Speaking a second language common in the West Valley, such as Mandarin, Hindi, Vietnamese or Spanish, is a plus.

Training Employees

Every new planner will complete about 20 hours of training before working alone. Training will cover:

- How to lead a Dream Session, including the card-sort activity and how to listen without pushing.
- Our health and accessibility checklist, and when a client should talk to their doctor first.
- How to recognize and report elder abuse, and how to protect client privacy.
- Our pricing, written plans and partner rules.

New planners will "shadow" me on at least three Dream Sessions, then lead two while I watch, before taking clients of their own.

Compensation

In year one, each co-owner will earn a salary of $750 per month ($9,000 per year), or $1,500 per month for both, while we finish school. As owners, we hope to earn more from the profits of the business, which we will split equally. In year two, our combined salaries will rise to $3,000 per month.

The part-time Dream Planner will start at $28 per hour for about 20 hours per week. Pay will be reviewed every six months and tied to client satisfaction scores. Experience Companions are paid by our partner agency; we pay the agency about $50 per hour for their time.

Incentives

Pay is only part of what keeps good people. We want our team to feel proud of the work, so we will share client thank-you notes and photos (with permission) at every team meeting. The Dream Planner will earn a $50 bonus for every five-star review that names them, and a $100 bonus for every client who comes back for a second dream. We will also offer flexible hours, since much of our work can be scheduled around a planner's life.

Part 4 · Principles of Marketing

Target Market

Someday Society will have two target markets.

The first target market is active older adults aged 65 to 85 in the West Valley. Santa Clara County has about 1.93 million residents, and 15.6% are 65 or older, roughly 300,000 people (U.S. Census Bureau). Our starting cities are older and wealthier than the county as a whole: in Saratoga, 25.9% of residents are 65 or older, and the median household income is about $241,000. Many are retired engineers, teachers and professionals with savings and free time. Older Americans planned to spend about $6,800 a year on travel in 2025 (AARP), so many already spend money on experiences.

The second target market is adult children aged 40 to 60. Many work in the tech industry or live out of state. They worry about their parents, have more income than time, and look for meaningful gifts. They usually find services online and decide faster than their parents do.

Product Features and Benefits

Someday Society offers in-home planning and coordination of meaningful experiences. Examples of dreams we can help with include a hot-air balloon ride over Napa, a first Giants game in 40 years, a trip back to a hometown or a parent's homeland, a family history video, a cooking class, or a reunion with old friends.

Feature	Benefit to the client
Planner visits the client at home	No driving or apps needed; the client feels comfortable
Guided card-sort activity	Helps clients name dreams they had forgotten or never said out loud
Health and accessibility checklist	The client and family feel safe saying yes
Written plan with every cost	No surprises, and easy to share with family
One planner coordinates everything	Removes the stress that keeps people from acting
Printed keepsake list and memory book	A lasting memory to share with grandchildren

Product Differentiation

Older adults have many choices for spending time and money, so we have to stand out. We have two major differences from our competitors.

The first is that we cover the whole journey. A travel agency can book a trip, but it will not help a 78-year-old figure out what they really want or plan around their medications. A home care agency helps with daily living, not dreams. Twilight Wish Foundation grants wishes, but only to low-income seniors. Senior centers offer group trips, not personal ones. Someday Society starts in the living room and ends with the memory book.

The second is trust. We include the family, put every price in writing, and work only with licensed and registered partners. For older clients, trust is more important than price.

Pricing

Someday Society is a premium service priced for the West Valley's high-income households, but the first step is affordable.

Package	Price
Dream Session	$175
Couples' Dream Session	$250
Dream Plan (includes a Dream Session)	$450
Dream Come True (per dream; experience costs paid separately)	$1,200
Second Dream Come True for the same client	$1,000
Extra printed memory book	$95

When a client books through a partner travel agency or venue, the partner pays us a referral fee of about 5% of the experience cost, which we always disclose. Travel agencies commonly earn 10% to 20% commission from tour and cruise companies (Fora Travel), so sharing 5% is realistic (to confirm with a partner).

As the business grows, prices will rise about 5% per year, and we will add a membership plan of about $49 per month that includes a yearly Dream Session and priority planning.

Place (Distribution) Issues

Our service goes to the customer. Clients call us or book on our website, and the planner comes to their home. For Dream Come True, partner services are booked in the client's name, and the client pays the partner directly; we charge only for our planning and coordination. This keeps client money safe and means we do not need to hold large payments.

We start in five cities within about 15 minutes of our Campbell office, which keeps travel time and mileage low. In the future, we hope to expand to the rest of Santa Clara County and then the Peninsula.

Advertising

Because we have two target markets, we will have two advertising approaches. Our year-one marketing budget is $3,000 at launch plus $600 per month.

For older adults, we will advertise in print media they already read, such as The Outlook, the Saratoga Area Senior Coordinating Council's monthly newspaper, and city newsletters. We will leave brochures at senior centers, libraries, churches, temples and doctors' offices. Each ad will include a coupon code so we can track which ads work.

For adult children, we will run Facebook and Google ads aimed at Bay Area adults aged 40 to 60 who search for gifts for parents, for about $250 per month. Our website will have large text, clear prices, client stories, and a "Call us" button.

We will also ask financial planners, estate attorneys and senior living advisors to refer clients, since they already work with our target customers.

Promotion

For older adults, we will give free monthly "What's on Your List?" workshops at the Saratoga Senior Center and local libraries. Attendees who book a Dream Session that day receive $25 off. To get our first reviews, our first 10 clients will receive 30% off in exchange for honest feedback.

For adult children, we will run gift promotions before Mother's Day, Father's Day and the winter holidays: a Dream Session gift certificate with a free extra memory book.

For everyone, we will offer a referral reward of $50 off the next package for every new client a customer refers. Word of mouth is the most trusted advertising among older adults.

Part 5 · Managing Information

IT Resources

We will use simple, low-cost technology to run the business and keep track of our clients:

- Website and online booking: a simple website with large text, prices, client stories, and a calendar where clients or their children can book a free phone consultation.
- Client records: a customer relationship management (CRM) app to store each client's contact details, family contacts, dreams, plans and follow-up dates. Health notes will be kept private and shared only with the client's permission.
- Tracking our advertising: every ad and brochure will carry its own coupon code. When a client books, we will record the code to learn which ads bring in customers, and spend more on those.
- Mailing list: with permission, clients will receive a printed newsletter four times a year, and their children will receive an email version, with new dream ideas and seasonal gift offers.
- Video calls: family members who live far away can join planning meetings by video.
- Bookkeeping: accounting software connected to our business bank account and card reader, reviewed monthly by our bookkeeper.

All devices will be password-protected, and client files will be backed up to secure cloud storage.

Customer Service

Someday Society will be customer-centered from the first phone call. A real person answers the phone during business hours, and every message is returned the same day. Many older adults dislike phone menus and chatbots, so we will not use them.

Each client has one named planner from start to finish, so they never have to repeat their story. After every visit, the client receives a printed summary of what we discussed and what happens next. Family members can receive updates by email or text if the client agrees.

After every package, we will ask the client to fill out a short feedback card or answer three questions by phone. Clients who give feedback receive a free extra photo print from their experience. We will use their answers to improve our service, and any score below 4 out of 5 will receive a personal call from me.

Cost of Doing Business

Expenses	Expected Monthly Cost	Expected Yearly Cost
Owner salaries (2 × $750)	$1,500	$18,000
Office rent (coworking membership)	$450	$5,400
Advertising and other promotions	$600	$7,200
Insurance (general and professional liability)	$150	$1,800
Telephone, software and website	$150	$1,800
Accounting and legal	$100	$1,200
Total	$2,950	$35,400

We also have costs that rise with each sale (cost of goods sold): about $35 for each Dream Session (keepsake printing and mileage), $65 for each Dream Plan (materials and mileage), and $500 for each Dream Come True (about 8 hours of a partner companion at $50 per hour, the memory book, and mileage). Card processing fees are 3% of service sales. There are no utility costs because utilities are included in the coworking membership.

Expected Revenue

We expect sales to start slowly and grow as reviews, referrals and workshops build trust. We plan to open in January 2027. In month 1, we expect to sell 3 Dream Sessions and 1 Dream Plan. By month 12, we expect to sell 12 Dream Sessions, 5 Dream Plans and 3 Dream Come True experiences per month. For the year, that is 93 Dream Sessions, 41 Dream Plans and 20 Dream Come True experiences.

We also expect partners to pay us a referral fee of about $150 for each Dream Come True (5% of an average $3,000 experience). This will lead to yearly revenues of approximately $61,725. These are estimates: before opening, I will survey 15 to 20 seniors and adult children to test whether these prices and sales numbers are realistic.

Financing

Talin and I will each invest $3,000 of our own savings, $6,000 in total. The remaining $15,000 is the amount we are requesting as a bank loan, such as an SBA microloan, over five years at about 9% interest. The monthly payment will be about $311. The business can make every payment from its own cash, and by the end of year one, the loan balance will fall to $12,513.
